SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The bill of Mr. HAMILTON, of Texas, having been referred to a select committee, in the House of Representatives, we hope to see the bill introduced in the Senate.

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES, CIVIC WORKS, AND THE BUCHANAN BILL, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

In February, 1860, Messrs. John B. Waller, Senator in Congress from California, James L. Orr of South Carolina, Howell Cobb of Georgia, and Gen. Jno. Lane, delegate in Oregon Territory, left Washington and visited Concord, New Hampshire, where they addressed the assembled members of the Democratic party, and the people of Concord, in a series of addresses, in which they presented the Democratic principles and documents as they then understood them. These gentlemen are well known to the American public, and their addresses will be read with interest by all who care for the character and conduct of the Presidential election.

Mr. Waller, in his address, said: "The Federal Government may sanction directly to the construction of such a great highway, and recognizes only the interests of a private corporation, to manage, control and conduct the same."

Mr. Lane, in his address, said: "We claim for Congress the right to abridge, by way of laws to the company, such assistance as may be necessary, to give such roads as may be required, for the convenience of a large portion of the country, and for the sole view and purpose of cheap and speedy transporting troops, munitions, and stores, and with the furthering of peaceful and quieting measures of a national character, great works of internal improvement are Atlantic from the Pacific States. In our view, this plan comes within the scope of power delegated to the Federal Government; for, if the roads were built, the troops, stores, munitions, and supplies are given speed and for a given price, by the long, laborious and expensive route now used, it logically follows that it may assist considerably in hastening the war, and in giving a cheap and expeditious conveyance, especially when it is intended to the present slow and indecisive system often defeats the very object of the war, and increases the cost of the stores and necessaries of the cause."

Mr. COOPER has an able and judicious advocate in the person of Senator Davis of Mississippi, who always set forth his views with clearness and force, during the administration of Mr. Buchanan.

The bill of Mr. HAMILTON, of Texas, embodies the views of the Friends in general, though it is not known to us exactly what its details will meet with his cordial and complete concurrence.

It is, however, now in the hands of a select committee, and the details will be ascertained as to meet with the favor of all who claim to be friends of this gigantic and important project.
